already root. This option is only available on systems with BSD login classes where sudo has been configured with the shell option in the sudoers file. The specified command as a user other than root may be specified using the -u (user) option. If the specified user has a login class, use "#uid" instead. The -s (shell) option runs the shell specified by the SHELL environment variable if it is set or the shell as specified in passwd(5). The -H (--set-home) option sets the environment variable to the home directory of the target user (
